Live export protestors optimistic as Barnes is elected

By Dean Kilpatrick

dean.kilpatrick@archant.co.uk

LIVE animal export protestors gathered outside the headquarters of Kent Police in Maidstone on Saturday, hoping to win the support of new Police and Crime Commissioner, Ann Barnes.

Mrs Barnes swept to victory in the poll after Friday's count.

The group handed in a letter demanding a meeting with Mrs Barnes once she's taken office to discuss what they call "heavy handed bully boy tactics" during demonstrations at the Port of Ramsgate.

Campaigners insist they only want to protest peacefully, despite what they call an 'over the top' police presence.

Opponent of the exports and Thanet councillor Ian Driver said: "Kent constabulary have on five occasions in the last six weeks, used their powers under section 14 of the Public Order Act 1986 to unfairly restrict the rights of people to demonstrate against the horrendous cruelty happening at the Port of Ramsgate.

"People can be quite emotional but it never gets out of hand, yet the police are using the section 14 order to pen the protesters in."

Police say they only take necessary steps to keep protestors safe.

NEW ROUTE: Manston's Charles Buchanan with Henri Hourcade of KLM at the launch

TRAVEL

MANSTON'S FLYING HIGH

FLIGHTS to Amsterdam will take off from Manston next April after an announcement was made at Canterbury Cathedral.

The route will be flown by Dutch national airline KLM, and tickets will cost either £99 or £199 return.

The carrier will offer users a 55-minute route to Schiphol Airport which, in turn, flies to more than 130 destinations, including the US, Asia and Africa.

There will be two outbound and two inbound flights a day from Manston, with airline bosses not ruling out the possibility of more if demand is strong.

It is hoped the service will be particularly popular in the county, providing an alternative to jaunts around the M25 to existing London airports.

An online survey about a proposed service attracted a positive response.

THE council has won a High Court ruling which forces landlords to be held more responsible for the behaviour of tenants.

The introduction of what is known as "selective licensing" in two wards, is seen as a key ingredient in cracking down on antisocial problems.

Margate Central and Cliftonville West will see the initiative implemented but the decision has left some landlords with properties in the area furious.

The move will see landlords pay up to £2,000 to fund a scheme which will allow Thanet council to control living conditions and maintenance of poorly-maintained properties.

The action was brought to the High Court by the Southern Landlords Association (SLA) after a public consultation back in 2010, but Mr Justice Cranston ruled in favour of the local authority.

Cabinet member for housing and planning Cllr David Green said: "The decision is wonderful news and I'm delighted with the ruling.

"The council is dedicated to the regeneration of these areas, and the selective licensing scheme represents a powerful legislative tool to help us do this."

However, the group behind the legal challenge said the action of badly-behaved tenants was not the responsibility of the isle's landlords.

SLA spokesman Peter Littlewood added: "The SLA still considers that the council has not acted in the interests of the majority of law abiding landlords of the residents of the Margate and Cliftonville area."

Fire crews were called to the fire in Arlington House just after 3pm on Friday.

The blaze in the eighth floor property was swiftly extinguished and smoke cleared.

BUSINESS

PLANS to knock down obsolete buildings on the former Pfizer site have been announced by new owners Discovery Park.

The unoccupied premises were built in the 1980s, but have been left unused for many years. They cost nearly £1 million a year to maintain.

SPORT

Olympic hero set to appear

A TEAM GB Olympic hero will visit Margate today (Wednesday) as part of the Thanet Sports Awards.

PCC ELECTION

A Barnes-storming victory as Ann makes history in PCC election vote

Reporting team

Marike Cox, Chrissie Daniels and Dean Kilpatrick

HISTORY was made this week with the election of Kent's first Police and Crime Commissioner.

As the results slowly trickled in from across the county's districts to Dover Town Hall, the message from the public was loud and clear: this role should not be political.

Every district saw independent Ann Barnes storm to victory in the first count of the supplementary vote system, with the former Kent Police Authority chair securing 45.9 per cent of the overall vote.

Second in the race was Conservative Craig Mackinlay with 24.7 per cent.

But with no-one reaching that all important 50 per cent mark, it went to a second count.

Before this was even a third of the way through, it was clear Mrs Barnes had secured victory.

While the nail-biting second count took place, she thanked her supporters.

"I'm so grateful for the warm support all my friends, supporters and my campaign team have given me," she said.

Speaking to KoS as the votes were counted, Mr Mackinlay said: "We are not getting the results we would have liked across the county."

"Turnout is lower than even we expected and that has been reflected elsewhere across the country."

"People did not know what the police authority did and as an election, people found it hard to engage."

"People seem to have leaned towards the independent message, however flawed it is."

"Politics and the police have always been intertwined."

Mr Mackinlay also commented on the low turnout, where just 16.3 per cent of the electorate voted.

"We were surprised at how low local turnout was while out on foot yesterday," he said.

"When people get home and it's dark they're not going to go out and vote."

He added: "The real thing coming out of the results is the loss of Labour votes."

"This is a county they will need to form the next government."

The election results saw Labour generally come third. Independent candidate Dai Liyanage failed to gain the support he had hoped for and Ukip's Piers Wauchope was unable to make much impact on the Tory vote.

Mrs Barnes as PCC will be responsible for governing the local police force and holding the Chief Constable to account for the performance of Kent Police.

She will have the power to hire and fire the Chief Constable, draw up and publish a police and crime plan, set the policing priorities and detail how and where money is spent.

Chief Constable Ian Learmonth will remain responsible for operational matters at Kent Police and Mrs Barnes will hold the force to account and "be the voice of the people".

She will pick up an £85,000 salary, hold a four year term and be able to recruit a team to work around her.

When Mrs Barnes announced her candidacy

FIRST LADY: Ann Barnes will be sworn in as PCC

earlier this year she said she would recruit a young person to be the Kent Police Youth Commissioner to be the eyes and ears of young people in the county.

The PCC's activities will be scrutinised by the Police and Crime Panel, made up of councillors from all the districts in Kent and a number of independent members.

They will have the power to veto decisions on the local precept and the appointment of a new Chief Constable, but ultimately the PCC will hold the power over the majority of decisions.

Critics could now question whether the election of Mrs Barnes will effectively see the creation of just another policing authority staffed by the same people as the Kent Police Authority.

But chair of Kent Police Federation, Ian Pinton, who represents rank and file officers, denied this.

"I think it will be very different to KPA," he said.

"The public – you, me – have been given the opportunity to directly elect somebody to oversee policing in the county."

He said if the election had been held in May, when other local elections were on, there may have been a better turnout.

But the question is whether the turnout will be any better in 2016.

PARANORMAL

The Apeman Cometh: Spooky sighting in spa town ignites intrigue

By Chrissie Daniels

chrissie.daniels@archant.co.uk

YOU see some strange things in and around the county, but perhaps this could be the weirdest yet, after claims a British Bigfoot has been spotted in woodland near Tunbridge Wells.

Dubbed the Kentish Apeman, it is claimed he towers eight-foot tall, is covered in hair and has red demonic eyes.

And while that may sound like lots of people after a night on the town, what's intriguing many is the fact a recent sighting ties in with one nearly 70 years ago on the same spot.

The most recent sighting is believed to have taken place last month on Tunbridge Wells Common – the 200-acre wooded site which sits in the centre of the town and is one of its most picturesque features.

But after it was reported, it jogged the memory of another local resident who went online to reveal how it tallied closely with a story he had heard years ago.

The author, who billed themselves as Graham S from the town, revealed how when he was working as a painter in the house of an elderly lady, she regaled him with a tale of coming face to face with the apeman on the Common during World War Two.

The post read: "One particular day she went to the Common with her husband and was sitting on a bench when they became aware of a shuffling noise behind them.

"Upon turning around both her husband and herself saw what she described as a tall, hairy ape like creature with eyes that were burning a reddish colour and it was moving towards them at a slow pace. They observed this creature for some time until they became afraid and they both fled – terrified.

FARMING

Fear EU reductions to financial aid for farmers could mean the end for rare plant and wildlife

POPULAR species of wild animals and plantlife could be put at risk of extinction amid fears Brussels could be about to slash financial handouts to farmers.

For the last 25 years, farmers have been rewarded financially for making their land environmentally-friendly, with a view to protecting the environment and encouraging a rich diversity of wildlife. It has been credited with reversing population declines in a host of species.

But animal charity the RSPB says it fears EU grants could be reduced due to cost-cutting measures – and with it the erosion of the largest single fund for wildlife conservation in the UK.

A survey released on Friday revealed 96 per cent of farmers in the UK say environmental work on their farms would be impacted if the so-called agri-environment schemes were stopped or funding reduced.

Current schemes include growing particular blends of nectar flowers to help produce food for insects, and creating banks to boost insect and spider numbers.

Prime Minister David Cameron is due to travel to Brussels later this month to talk to European leaders, with agriculture spending on the agenda.

"She went on to say that they told the police and members of their family, thinking that a gorilla had escaped from a zoo, but were laughed at and were not believed."

Sceptics may say the incidents could be down to a trick of the light, but Neil Arnold, a paranormal expert from Rochester, said he has received numerous reports of the apeman over the years.

One of the sightings took place in Dartford by a girl named Charlotte who was heading home in her car from the University of Kent. She said she saw a creature with long arms and knees which came up under its chin as it walked. She was so petrified she nearly crashed her car.

Other sightings, according to Mr Arnold, include five members of the Territorial Army in 1991 spotting the beast on Blue Bell Hill, near Maidstone, and throwing stones and shouting at it before running away.

Another sighting in Chatham by a young girl with her partner saw the apeman appear then run off into the bushes.

Mr Arnold, who doesn't believe the apeman to be a flesh and blood 'monster', but a paranormal figure, has also had reports from Maidstone and Hythe. In each example the figure appears the same and Mr Arnold said tales of an apeman date back decades.

He said: "It's a very touchy subject in the sense that these things are really not normal. I get some unusual reports. There have been reports all over England, but we can never prove something paranormal."

Mr Arnold said he believes the reports could be similar to folklore tales which described 'wild men of the woods'.

He also compared the apeman to fictional children's character Stig of the Dump, which could have been inspired by a sighting as the author, Clive King, grew up in Kent.

WANTED: Have you spotted the apeman taking a stroll on Pantiles?

PETS

Abandoned animals feel the pain of recession as owners struggle with soaring bills

SPECIAL REPORT

By Dean Kilpatrick

dean.kilpatrick@archant.co.uk

PETS are increasingly becoming the victims of the economic slump as cash-strapped families are forced to give them up – only to put intense pressure on animal rescue centres which are struggling due to a drop in donations.

In a special report this week, we spoke to animal welfare groups across the county and were met with the same response: the situation is spiralling out of control.

Animal charities say they are facing “unprecedented” levels of unwanted pets being abandoned by owners who can’t afford to look after them. They include cats, dogs, horses and even reptiles.

The number of animals abandoned across the country has increased by 65 per cent over the last five years, and a number of centres in Kent have stopped taking in animals as they continue to be inundated by struggling owners.

Yet they themselves are struggling to keep their heads

DUMPED: Cats and horses are suffering the most, but all animals, including man's best friend, are being affected above water as donations dwindle.

The Animal Samaritans is a national charity which looks to care for unwanted or neglected pets and offer support for owners.

The north west Kent branch, which covers Gravesend, Dartford, Medway and Maidstone, said it had seen a huge increase in the number of cats dumped in the county.

Volunteer Valerie Croxford said:

“We have had a very bad year. Cats are being abandoned all over the place – it’s a big, big problem.

“We had three kittens dumped in a wheelie bin just the other day: Heaven knows what would have happened had the dustbin lorry come along before they were found.

“We’re not coping really – we do not have enough volunteers to help out and our current account is running low, so we have to be careful how to share our finances.”

All species of animal are feeling the effects of the recession – but horses and cats are suffering the most, according to animal charities.

Centre manager at the RSPCA Thanet branch, Clive Martin, said cat owners were not neutering their cats as a result of shrinking family budgets, leading to a boom of kittens.

Cats can become pregnant as early as 12 weeks into their lives, and families are struggling to care for the extra paws.

Mr Martin said: “They are free to roam and they are free to mate with other cats, and at the moment it’s a real problem.

“We are seeing an increase because people can’t afford day-to-day bills, such as feeding, and we are also seeing people losing their homes. People are more likely to spend £20 on food for the table rather than neutering their cat.”

And horses, which are the most expensive animals to look after as pets, are being dumped as a result of the recession by owners who haven’t prepared for the expensive costs of the winter.

Horse owners need more hay, feed, as well as winter jackets during the cold months.

Canterbury Horse Rescue’s Stella King, who has been working with animals for nearly 20 years, said it was the “worst she had ever seen”, and urged people to think about the long-term welfare of their animals.

She said: “This is not over with – this is getting worse. This winter is going to be a hard one – I wish people would realise that the welfare of an animal is about affording to keep it after it’s bought.

“We are getting more and more calls because people haven’t prepared through the summer – people are only starting to realise they can’t afford to keep their horses.”

And an Ashford group which used to look after and rehome unwanted reptiles as a hobby has had to stop due to a high level of demand which the finances could not keep up with.

South East Exotic Pet Rescue’s Matt Lacey said: “We never got any assistance and it was just too expensive to run.

“There aren’t many reptile places out there and we had so many people giving them in and just moving onto the next pet.”

TRAVEL

Take-off for £99 flights which provide gateway to host of global destinations

By Chrissie Daniels

chrissie.daniels@archant.co.uk

IT was one of the worst kept secrets in the travel industry, but this week a new service flying from Manston to Amsterdam was confirmed as tickets went on sale ahead of an April launch.

The route will be flown by Dutch national airline KLM, which is merged with Air France.

KLM IN NUMBERS

28 jobs created at Manston

4 flights a day

80 passengers per flight

130 destinations from Amsterdam

55 minutes of flight time

PRICE GUIDE

£99 cheapest return to Amsterdam

£486 New York

£451 Dubai

£613 Hong Kong

£607 Johannesburg

Tickets will cost either £99 or £199 return and will provide users a 55-minute route to Schiphol Airport which, in turn, flies to more than 130 destinations, including the US, Asia and Africa.

The first flight will be on April 2.

There will be two outbound and two inbound flights a day from Manston, with airline bosses not ruling out the possibility of more if demand is strong. It is hoped the service will be particularly popular in the county, providing an alternative to jaunts around the M25 to existing London airports.

The launch follows KLM confirming in September it was interested in running a service. An online survey attracted more than 9,000 responses and an overwhelmingly positive response.

However, observers will be cautiously optimistic given the plight of previous flights from the airport – most notably the launch of services by EUjet which then went bust.

Henri Hourcade, general manager for Air France KLM in the UK, is confident the route will prove to be a success.

He said: "I am confident but we have to develop awareness that there is a possibility to get to the world from Kent.

"We will also sell Manston to our customers. We will put Manston on the map for our commercial flights and this will push Manston as the door to England."

He said the timetable of flights, the first leaving at 6.35am and the last returning at 9.45pm, means business travellers can take a day trip to Amsterdam for work, adding that this should encourage businesses to set up in Kent and allow local companies to begin trading abroad.

Mr Hourcade said if Manston Airport, which is owned by Infratil and is currently up for sale, changes hands, the KLM flights will make it more attractive.

Charles Buchanan, chief executive at the airport said he will be recruiting 28 more staff members to help with the service.

He said: "I am thrilled and excited and we could not wish for a better partner."

The plane used for the journeys will be a Fokker 70 jet aircraft which can carry 80 passengers and its first flight will be piloted by Simon King from Kent, who trained with the Red Arrows.

Thanet and east Kent Chamber of Commerce chief executive David Foley said: "Given the considerable savings in time and money to local long haul passengers transiting via Amsterdam, there is every reason to suppose that the arrival of KLM in Manston will stimulate employment in east Kent, reduce costs for exporters and boost tourism throughout the county."

Thanet North MP Sir Roger Gale said: "People can dream of a third runway at Heathrow, a second runway at Gatwick or Boris Island but all of those dreams are 20 years down the construction line and the demand for more capacity in the south east is immediate."

RELIGION

New archbishop 'will need all his diplomatic skills' to meet challenges faced by the Church

By Dean Kilpatrick

dean.kilpatrick@archant.co.uk

THE next Archbishop of Canterbury has "good potential for an impossible job", says a leading scholar.

Professor Jeremy Carrette, head of religious studies and head of religion and culture at the University of Kent, said the decision to appoint the Right Reverend Justin Welby was a "creative" one.

Dr Welby, a former oil executive, will take over the reigns of the Church of England when Dr Rowan Williams steps down at the end of the year.

Dr Welby, 56, is currently Bishop of Durham. He will be officially enthroned in March.

Prof Carrette said: "He will be the first ever archbishop to have a background in business and the oil industry and will potentially bridge theological ethics and the business world. He will need all his diplomatic skills from the business world and his envoy work to resolve the splits inside the Anglican Church.

"He is a supporter of women bishops, but his attitude to gay priesthood will be his key challenge and most difficult decision.

"It is a creative appointment, and someone with good potential for an impossible job."

Certainly he faces no simple task. The Church remains dammingly split over gay priests and women bishops. In addition, there is a more pressing challenge with dwindling congregations amid a shift to an apparently more secular society.

Yet the world remains so frequently dictated by religious ideology, and Dr Welby will have bridging the gap between the religions near the top of his agenda.

The Bishop of Dover, Trevor Willmott, will be the archbishop's right-hand man. He looked forward to welcoming Dr Welby.

He said: "He has a powerful vision for the Church in contemporary society and a breadth of experience in the Church and in the world. I can think of no-one better to lead the Anglican Church.

Bishop Welby has demonstrated a deep commitment to the communities he has served, including those struggling socially and economically in Liverpool and Durham."

THE ARCHBISHOP'S PLACE IN KENT

AS head of the Anglican Church with some 800 million members worldwide, the archbishop spends little time in Kent.

His main office is at Lambeth Palace in London, but he is well aware of his role as leader of the Diocese of Canterbury, which covers 335 churches across Kent.

The Bishop of Dover has the

EXPERIENCED: The next Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr Justin Welby, was a businessman before joining the church

DR JUSTIN WELBY

THE next archbishop has a fascinating past, tainted by tragedy and with more than its fair share of drama. It is experience which should put him in a strong position for such a demanding role.

Prior to entering the priesthood, he was a successful businessman in the oil industry. But his life was to change in 1983 when a car accident robbed him of his seven-month-old daughter. The father-of-six said the tragedy brought both him and his wife closer to God.

As an envoy to some of the most war-torn parts of Africa, he frequently found himself staring down the barrel of a gun prior to negotiations.

He became Dean of Liverpool Cathedral in 2007 and Bishop of Durham in 2011.

Dr Welby was one of the front-runners to become the 105th Archbishop when Dr Williams announced his retirement.

Speaking in New Zealand earlier this month, Dr Williams said his successor would need to "preach with a Bible in one hand and a newspaper in the other".

Following last Friday's announcement, Dr Welby said: "To be nominated to Canterbury is overwhelming and astonishing."

HISTORY

Gone but not forgotten: The lasting legacy of our coal communities and industry

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

A CENTURY ago this week, the county's first ever load of commercial coal was brought to the surface, sparking an influx of workers from across the UK and the birth of the county's mining industry.

With it came a collection of tight-knit communities, carving their place in the landscape; the impact of which is still felt today, several decades after the last pit shut down.

Created by families who had travelled to the area to take advantage of the employment opportunities, they made a new life for themselves in an area whose mining heritage is frequently overlooked.

But with the industry came hardships: from strikes and clashes between protesters and police, to sickness and death from respiratory diseases, and the eventual closure of the county's coalfield by 1989.

In the face of adversity, however, these communities remained loyal to the industry and have stayed proud of their roots to this day.

Celebrations are taking place from November 16-22 in tribute to the mining spirit and to remember the day it all started on November 19, 1912, when the first commercial load of coal was brought up at Snowdown colliery, located between Dover and Deal.

CHANGE: It was 100 years ago the first fuel emerged from Kent's coal mines

This followed the discovery of coal at Shakespeare Cliff in Dover in 1896, when more than 45 test bores were sunk.

Dubbed 'Dante's Inferno' by workers, due to its heat and humidity, Snowdown colliery was the deepest, reaching 3,000ft. Tilmanstone, Chislet and Bettishanger collieries followed soon after and with them came the creation of small towns including Aylesham, Elvington and Mill Hill to house the immigrant miners.

Chairman of the Kent Miners' Festival, Gary Cox, said there was more to Kent's mining history than the famous strikes of the 1980s.

Mr Cox was born to a mining family in east Kent with his grandfathers, father, uncles and cousins working in the mines.

"We're unique in Kent," he said. "Miners came from all over the country. They weren't really welcomed. We became one big family and it's still like that today. There was a lot of prejudice, which made us closer. There really was a mining community spirit."

Mr Cox said it was crucial that people remembered the impact the miners had.

"We must not let their struggles be forgotten or allow our community spirit to die along with them," he said.

Snowdown colliery centenary events are being held, starting last week with a two-day heritage exhibition at New Welfare Club in Aylesham.

A special concert, A Century of Music, is also taking place in Deal featuring the Snowdown Choir, Snowdown Band and Bettishanger Band this weekend. Tickets are now sold out.

Among the events, the East Kent Railway is running special services from Shepherdswell to Elythorne this Sunday.

Culminating the week of celebrations, Astor Youth Theatre presents Seaside Story; a retelling of Romeo and Juliet, on Thursday at the Astor Theatre in Deal. For a list of events see <http://bit.ly/TCVZL5>.

TWELVE MONTHS THAT CHANGED THE COAL FACE

MOST remember the miners due to the strikes in the 1980s when then-Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher decided to close all the unprofitable coal pits in the UK.

It sparked one of the most bitter disputes in British history, when thousands of miners took part in a strike lasting 12 long months.

The industrial action led to violent clashes between protesters and police as well as animosity between those who stayed on the picket line and those who returned to work.

Kent's miners were known as the most loyal to the National Union of Mineworkers and the most militant.

ROAD SAFETY

Mum's road safety fight after losing daughter in car crash

By Chrissie Daniels

chrissie.daniels@archant.co.uk

THE mother of a teenager killed in an horrific car crash has spoken out in a bid to prevent others being killed or seriously injured.

Marion Cornick, 62, lost her 16-year-old daughter Natalie, known as Talli, in the smash 10 years ago.

Since Talli's death, Mrs Cornick, who lives in Cliff Woods near Rochester, has campaigned tirelessly to warn others of the dangers on the road.

Now, as part of National Road Safety Week, which runs from November 19-23, Mrs Cornick has told her story.

Talli was riding her moped on the nearby B2000 in 2002, when 18-year-old Darren Collins lost control of his car and smashed into her. She died instantly at the scene.

Collins was travelling at 48mph on the 60mph road and was later convicted of driving without due care and attention.

Mrs Cornick said: "Talli was going to a girlfriend's house down the road. It was 5.30pm, but it was January so it was dark. A car coming the other way literally just came across the other lane and hit her.

"In the same year two other people were killed on the same road. We campaigned and got the road speed down to 40mph."

Mrs Cornick described how, when Talli didn't call to say she arrived at her friend's safely, worry began to set in.

She said: "At 7pm a police car was outside our house. We found out [Collins'] car was spinning [after it hit Talli] and she was on his bonnet. As he stopped it threw her off. She died instantly which in a way is a comfort."

Mrs Cornick said the driver couldn't remember what happened and could only recall a loud bang so it is hard to know what made him lose control.

Talli's sister Alice was 12 at the time and now, aged 23, still finds it hard to cope with what happened.

Mrs Cornick said: "It has really affected her; she doesn't want to learn to drive. It's had a more lasting affect on her, they very were close."

At the inquest, Collins asked to speak with the family to offer his apologies.

Mrs Cornick said: "He came up and shook hands. He was really remorseful. It's not going to alter it, but he's got to live with the fact his driving killed a 16-year-old girl."

Since the crash, Mrs Cornick has found some peace in raising awareness of road safety.

She said: "It started with the speed limit campaign. The only way we are going to get through to people is education."

Mrs Cornick also takes part in a theatre production Licence to Kill? each November, which shows 16 to 18-year-olds a car crash and the devastating effects of irresponsible driving.

The show gives different points of view from the police to the family. It also features someone who has been convicted of dangerous driving and takes part on a visit from prison.

KILLED: Natalie Cornick was 16

CRIME

Police issue warning over car security after alarming patrol

MOTORISTS are being urged not to put temptation in the way of crooks, by ensuring their cars are properly secured.

It follows a patrol in Maidstone town centre recently which saw seven cars found either unlocked or with windows open. Other cars had phones, cash and bags clearly visible.

Inspector Geoff Wyatt said: "It takes a thief literally seconds to steal your belongings from a car. By simply locking your car, removing valuables and taking them with you will reduce this crime."

WARD CLOSURE: Medway Maritime Hospital was hit by its first case of norovirus earlier than usual this year

HEALTH

Winter sickness bug closes ward as health chiefs issue warnings

By Chrissie Daniels

chrissie.daniels@archant.co.uk

WINTER vomiting bug norovirus is back and causing havoc as health chiefs warn numbers of cases are on the rise.

The highly infectious condition that causes vomiting and diarrhoea, is usually prevalent during the winter months. But this year it seems the virus has begun early and the Health Protection Agency (HPA) has reported seeing a rise in cases.

Earlier this month, Medway Maritime Hospital in Gillingham was forced to close its Will Adams ward when seven people were diagnosed.

A hospital trust spokeswoman said the ward had to remain closed for 72 hours after the last identified case.

The ward was then given a 'deep cleanse' before it was reopened.

The HPA said it is hard to tell how many cases of the virus there are each year as many people do not visit their doctors with the symptoms and there is no obligation for it to be reported.

Norovirus is the most common stomach bug in the UK and can affect all ages. As it is so infectious, vulnerable people in care homes, schools and hospitals are particularly at risk.

Dr James Sedgwick, interim director of the Kent Health Protection Unit said: "Outbreaks of norovirus infection are common as winter approaches. The virus spreads rapidly from person to person, especially in institutions such as hospitals, residential care homes and schools.

"In hospitals, it is often necessary to isolate individual cases and closures of wards are common as measures are taken to contain the infection and stop it spreading."

FACTFILE

■ The symptoms are vomiting and diarrhoea. Some people have a raised temperature, headaches and aching limbs.

■ Hospitals are asking people with the virus not to visit loved ones to avoid spreading the infection to vulnerable patients.

■ The HPA advises people with norovirus to take time off work until they have been symptom-free for at least 48 hours. It also said not to visit your GP or accident and emergency department as there is no treatment, but to take fluids to avoid dehydration.

■ However, if your symptoms appear to worsen call NHS Direct or your GP.

CELEBRITY

Brad and Angelina stay in £3,000-a-week luxury cottage during filming

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

HOLLYWOOD couple Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie stayed in a stunning holiday cottage – complete with flatscreen 3D TV, pool table and grand piano – in a sleepy village near Canterbury earlier this month, it has been confirmed.

The superstars and their children were in Kent while Mr Pitt re-shot scenes from upcoming blockbuster zombie movie World War Z.

And while they stayed in a luxurious £3,000-a-week converted barn, they also went shopping in the local stores and visited nearby Howletts Wild Animal Park.

The post-apocalyptic movie, based on the best-selling book by Max Brooks, is due for release next summer. Scenes were shot at the Discovery Park in Sandwich – the sprawling former home of US drug giant Pfizer – and a short drive from the village retreat. But the company that rents exclusive holiday cottages in Kent says it only realised who its VIP guests were after the superstars had jetted back to the US.

They stayed at The Treasury in Ickham, a sumptuous barn conversion featuring "breath-taking huge rooms, floor to ceiling windows and beamed, vaulted ceilings throughout".

A spokeswoman at Canterbury-based rental firm Mulberry Cottages said: "We have only just found out they were staying with us. It was booked through a production company."

And she joked: "They left it in good condition, so got their deposit back."

Some reports suggested Mr Pitt popped along to nearby The Duke William pub, but owner Kate Coleman denies that happened.

She said: "They stayed in the village and we had their security stay with us. He didn't make an appearance. He was filming all week."

"She [Ms Jolie] went to Littlebourne stores and to the post office to send cards from their children to Father Christmas."

At the post office, shop assistant Fiona Lindsay said: "They came in on Friday. I was working in the shop at the time and I served her in the shop. She was so polite and a really nice person, I was quite shocked – she was so lovely."

"She bought the kids magazines and toys and one packet of sweets each. The children were also polite."

"They made a lot of noise at one point. There were two bodyguards outside and one inside. It was a surreal moment."

Thousand-strong protest to take place in battle 'to save village'

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

PEOPLE living in a picturesque medieval market village at the foot of the North Kent Downs have launched a desperate fight to stop a supermarket chain moving in.

So anxious is the community of Lenham at losing what they describe as "a village from a bygone era", they have appealed to Prince Charles.

Campaigners said the Southern Co-operative has submitted an 'expression of interest' in opening a store at the old ironmongers, which was destroyed in an arson attack two years ago, remaining empty.

They said local shops would not be able to compete against the buying power of the chain, spelling the end of community spirit and village life.

Shop owner Matthew Cockell said it would destroy the village's individuality, adding: "We have no chain stores in the main part of the village and we are thriving.

"Everyone does their own thing and we all try and keep away from other people's trades to give everyone a chance. For example, as a village store we would be expected to do meat and newspapers and even some cut flowers, but we don't so that the butcher, newsagent and florist aren't affected by our trade.

STAY AWAY: Campaigners do not want a supermarket chain in Lenham

"If the Co-op comes in, they will do meat, newspapers, flowers, bread, even stamps and medicines, so every shop in the square will be affected. It could damage the whole village."

His wife Jemma added: "I was devastated when we first received a letter from the Co-op. Not only would this affect my partner's income, we also live above the shop, so we could potentially lose our home."

Campaigners have written to Prince Charles asking him to support their plight.

BBC TV's Have I Got News for You team captain Ian Hislop, who lives in Sissinghurst, has joined in too, stating: "I support your call for villagers to have a say in their own future."

A mass protest in the village square on Monday at 7pm is expected to attract as many as 1,000 people and there is a public meeting with Southern Co-operative at the community centre next Saturday, November 24, from 10am-noon.

A spokeswoman for the campaign group said if a supermarket chain moves in it will be the end for village stores, adding: "This neon monstrosity would not only be totally out of place in our beautiful medieval village, but it would truly be the end of village life as we know it."

There are also fears the local dance school would have to shut to make way for the Co-op's development.

She said despite the possibility of 25 new jobs, this would do little to help the loss of trade and subsequent loss of jobs at other stores caused by the Co-op opening.

An e-petition has been set up on the Government's e-petition site. Go to <http://epetitions.direct.gov.uk/petitions/40294> to sign it.

GARETH'S ALL TIED UP

POP and stage star Gareth Gates is all smiles as he slips into an outfit he's going to get very used to over the festive season, as pantomime rehearsals got under way this week.

The star plays Prince Charming in Sleeping Beauty at Canterbury's Marlowe Theatre, along with former punk princess, Toyah Willcox.

Mr Gates said: "My character's going to have a humorous side, have a few jokes – as well as being charming of course."

And as our exclusive picture reveals, he's going to be in all his finery when the curtain goes up on the show later this month.

The production runs from November 30 to January 20. See <http://bit.ly/X80qps> for a full guide to all of the county's top pantos.

Turn to page 43 for a full interview with Mr Gates on his rise to fame and battle with a stutter.

HISTORY

Funding to protect memories of the past

A SERIES of cash grants are being made available to help protect the memory of key moments in the county's history.

Set up by the Kent Archaeological Society, the Allen Grove Local History Fund makes annual grants to help pay for research, publications, exhibitions and other projects.

It is designed to encourage interest in local history.

Sums of up to £500 are available, but more funds can be liberated in exceptional cases. And just about anyone can put in an application to back their pet subject.

Individuals, groups, organisations and even students are invited to apply for the cash from the society to help their projects.

The fund is named after Allen Grove (pictured), one of the county's most eminent historians of his generation.

Grove was curator of Maidstone Museum from 1948 to 1975. He was honorary curator of the society for 26 years, and its president in 1987/88. He also became the chairman of the Kent History Federation for eight years.

When he died in 1990 he left £26,000 from the proceeds of the sale of his house to the KAS, with instructions that the society should invest the legacy and distribute the interest in ways to promote the enjoyment of Kent's history.

Just four years later, the fund was in place. Since then more than £28,000 has been awarded, mainly to support the publication of books and booklets but also for displays in heritage centres, oral history projects, and establishing archives and research centres.

Application forms can be downloaded from www.kentarchaeology.org.uk or obtained by sending a stamped addressed envelope to KAS honorary general secretary, Peter Stutchbury, Lympne Hall, Lympne, Hythe CT21 4LQ.

CAMPAIGN

Can you donate your fuel allowance this winter to help save the vulnerable?

Kent BRIDE Magazine is on sale NOW!

Over £5,000 of prizes to be won

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

A CAMPAIGN to help the most needy survive this winter has been launched with backing from a host of famous faces.

Kent Community Foundation, a charity helping improve the lives of people in the county, and over-50s specialists Saga, kick-started the drive this week.

Stephen Fry is among a number of celebrities to get involved, encouraging people who receive the Government's £200 winter fuel allowance who don't need the money to donate it to the most needy.

Every household with residents over the age of 60 living there receives the fund every winter, regardless of their financial position.

KCF said there will be some more well off than others who really don't need the fund. By donating the money to KCF, the charity can redirect it to cash-strapped households to help go towards bills.

The aim is to reduce fuel poverty and to help thousands of vulnerable people this winter.

This is the scheme's second year. Last year, the campaign raised £1 million nationally, with £16,000 of that in Kent.

Chief executive officer of KCF, Carol Lynch, said the funds helped elderly people struggling to pay the bills.

"Last winter in Kent the appeal raised over £16,000, which was directed back, via our network of frontline groups, to those older people

IN NEED: Many elderly people struggle to afford proper heating

TV presenter, actor and author Stephen Fry has given his backing to the Surviving Winter drive, calling it a "simple yet brilliant idea".

"Millions of vulnerable and older people struggle with fuel poverty, and with the weather getting colder and energy prices on the rise, they are more at risk than ever," he said.

"It makes so much sense that those who can help, donate to the appeal. I support it wholeheartedly, as the community foundations make sure that any donations reach those in need very quickly."

Last year, Kent's great and good threw their weight behind the campaign, with former Maidstone MP and Strictly Come Dancing star Ann Widdecombe among the donors.

Remarkable discovery finds hall fit for a king

By Dean Kilpatrick

dean.kilpatrick@archant.co.uk

A RARE Anglo-Saxon feasting hall fit for a king, believed to date back to the 6th century, has been uncovered by a team of archaeologists.

Experts from the University of Reading, who worked alongside Kent Archaeological Society and Canterbury Archaeological Trust members, have discovered the historic site in Lyminge, near Folkestone, after a series of excavations.

The hall, which measures 21 metres by 8.5 metres, was found by the team who celebrated the find by marking the outline of the hall in burning candles as the night sky began to emerge.

It's the first such find in more than 30 years, and historians are now trying to piece the history of the village together with hopes the feasting hall will shine a light on the origins of Christianity in Anglo-Saxon England.

Initial findings show the site would have been able to accommodate up to 60 people, and formed part of a building complex used for royal assemblies attended by the king and his armed entourage.

The dig follows previous excavations in Lyminge, which have revealed extensive remains of an Anglo-Saxon monastery, believed to be from between the 7th and 9th century, just inches beneath open areas of the village.

Lecturer in archaeology at the University of Reading, Dr Gabor Thomas, said: "This hall is remarkably well preserved.

DISCOVERY: Archaeologists are being kept busy at the site of the Anglo-Saxon feasting hall. Bottom right is a decorative mount from around 525-575 AD which is among the finds from the dig

"With a ground-plan in excess of 160m square, the hall is comparable in scale and importance to some of the largest Saxon timber halls previously excavated in England at sites such as Yeavering and Cowdry's Down.

"The hall provides an exceedingly rare glimpse of royal accommodation of a type otherwise evoked in the Anglo-Saxon poem Beowulf. Such structures were manifestly not 'houses' – they were prestigious buildings used at specific times for a specific purpose such as periodic gatherings involving feasting and gift-giving that reinforced the social bonds between the king and his loyal retainers."

Experts believe there is more to be discovered at the site, and following the "unanticipated" find, more excavations will be carried out next summer.

bridal fitting associated with the Anglo-Saxon warrior elite.

Dr Thomas added: "Nearly all the archaeological information shedding light on Kent around the time of the conversion to Christianity is based upon cemetery finds.

"The site at Lyminge is the first to provide a detailed picture of life at an aristocratic estate centre in Anglo-Saxon Kent during the height of the kingdom's political power at the end of the 6th century."

Evidence also suggests the building was badly damaged by a fire, but it is believed the hall was abandoned as tribes converted to Christianity.

Artifacts discovered at the site included fragments of luxury glass vessels and a rare

Stay well in colder weather

Families can take simple steps to keep healthy this winter, says Meradin Peachey, director of public health for Kent

AS WE enter the flu, coughs and colds season, there are easy things you can do to prevent yourself becoming unwell.

You can also help the NHS by asking yourself if your condition is an emergency, a serious injury or illness that needs to be treated at an Accident and Emergency department.

According to an NHS survey, 12 per cent of people admit to using A&E when they knew they didn't need to, such as for tummy bugs, chest infections, coughs and colds. People who do this are likely to have a long wait and take NHS resources away from those who really need them.

Washing your hands regularly and well is the single most important thing you can do to prevent illnesses, such as tummy bugs and flu.

It is particularly important for young children, older people and those who prepare food for them, as the young and elderly are vulnerable to gastroenteritis, including norovirus (winter vomiting disease), which is increasingly common in winter.

Flu can be very serious for some people. Please have a free NHS flu vaccination at your GP practice if you are over 65, have a serious health condition or are pregnant.

Prevent the spread of illness by using tissues to cover your mouth and nose when coughing or sneezing, putting them in a bin and washing your hands well. Remember – catch it, bin it and kill it.

One of the best ways of keeping yourself well during winter is to stay warm.

Cold air can trigger respiratory symptoms, such as wheezing and shortness of breath.

People with serious long-term conditions, such as COPD (chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, which includes chronic bronchitis and emphysema) or heart problems, should try not to go out when the temperature plummets.

Keep your home warm, between 18C (56F) and 21C (70F), and stock up on food and medicines.

Also, take care when you are walking on icy footpaths and wear suitable, well-fitting footwear to minimise your risk of falling.

Sore throats, coughs, colds and flu are caused by viruses and antibiotics have no effect on them. If you are coughing, sneezing, have a blocked nose, sore throat, or a temperature and these are your only symptoms, ask your pharmacist for advice.

If you are being sick or have diarrhoea, drink plenty of water or rehydration fluids (available from pharmacies) to prevent dehydration. Most people get better within 48 hours.

Please don't visit anyone in hospital or a care home if you feel unwell – a bug which is mild for someone in good health can be dangerous for more vulnerable people.

If you need to see a doctor, contact your GP practice and say if it is urgent. When your practice is closed, if you cannot wait until it re-opens, phone South East Health on 03000 24 24 24 (Kent) or, in Medway, call Medway On Call Care (MedOCC) on 01634 891855 for the out of hours service.

Minor injury units and walk-in centres open late, until 8pm or 9pm. Minor injury units can treat, for instance, burns, sprains, cuts and foreign bodies in the eye, nose and ear.

You can also call NHS Direct on 0845 46447 for advice.

Please keep Accident and Emergency departments free for those who really need help.

KOS COMMENT

Pets are not a fad so think before you buy

THE well-known message 'a dog is for life, not just for Christmas' is perhaps more true now than ever before as charities struggle with unprecedented levels of unwanted pets being abandoned by their cash-strapped owners.

Kittens, horses, reptiles and even dogs are been left and while some are given to charities, others are just dumped, left to fend for themselves or, in many cases, perish.

Pets aren't just an accessory that can be shoved in the back of a cupboard when they're no longer wanted. The problem will only get worse if people ignore the long term factors of having a pet, leading to more beautiful animals being dumped.

Has Bigfoot returned?

WE'VE had big cat sightings and reports of ghostly hitchhikers, but perhaps this latest claim is the weirdest yet.

A British Bigfoot living in Kent? Few have seen it. Few will believe it. But it will provide great material for Kent's large selection of spooky tales.

Opinion shows hidden agenda

He was too fast for any road

THANK you Dave Mairs (Opinion, last week) for succinctly summing up the situation in our county as regards the attitudes of the powers that be, concerning local communities trying to prevent unsuitable and unwanted housing developments in their areas.

We in Chilmington Green are fighting to prevent a 5,750 house 'Garden City' from being built on 1,000 acres of farmland in our small hamlet.

This proposed development is in addition to the many thousands of outline planning permissions for properties already granted in Ashford borough, and as yet unbuilt, due to lack of demand.

Every empty piece of land is at risk in this county, readers be vigilant.

Sarah Stanfield, Ashford

WHAT a strange attitude to speeding Terry Hudson of Swalecliffe seems to have.

At the speed he was travelling, [TV's Masterchef presenter] Greg Wallace would have been exceeding the speed limit irrespective of the class of road he was on, and on the A249, where he was observed, there are also gaps in the central reservation to allow traffic to cross, so exceeding the speed limit on that road carries additional risk.

From letters I have had published previously on this issue some readers might have formed the impression I am 'anti-speed'; but far from it.

For example, I believe the speed limit on motorways should be higher, but despite discussions about it, I don't think it's going to happen.

I also believe the case for retaining the 50mph speed limit on the A249 through Jade's Crossing is well made and there is no case for increasing it; and the remainder of it, all the way to the Stockbury roundabout, has various inherent hazards along it that make camera enforcement wholly justified.

If anyone disagrees, just compare the character of this dual carriageway to the A2 London bound. On leaving Kent and entering the London borough of Bexley the speed limit reduces to 50mph and it never goes above that on any road all the way to the M1, despite the fact many of the roads are wider carriageways, far superior in terms of 'risk reduction' than the A249.

So, anyone caught exceeding the speed limit on the latter shouldn't be crying 'foul' and expecting others to come to their defence by claiming the cameras shouldn't be there, but and plead guilty as Mr Wallace chose to do.

Christopher Hudson-Gool, Maidstone

Data paints the actual picture

TERRY Hudson may wish to read the information on our website a little more closely which states that camera vans operate within the signed areas at fixed camera sites.

The fixed camera site on Detling Hill is included in this, and is clearly marked on the camera map.

As stated in the details released to the media, the camera site was installed because there were eight people killed or seriously injured along that stretch of road.

The objective of enforcement is to reduce speeds through the signed area. We do not by law have to put the black and white signs up but we do this to warn motorists of a fixed and/or mobile camera van along particular stretches of road.

Casualties and speeds have been reduced along this stretch of road, and all sites are reviewed annually to ensure they are fit for purpose.

With regards to 'trotting out the usual blurb' – the press details were in relation to an offence and prosecution of 82mph in a 50mph limit and stated the reason the camera was installed in the first place.

If Mr Hudson would like any of this data evidenced, K&MSCP would be happy to oblige and he can email communications@kmscp.org.

Katherine Barrett, communications officer, Kent & Medway Safety Camera Partnership

Strategy just not the ticket

YOUR correspondent Rex Priggen of Westgate-on-Sea, (KOS, last week), reflects the widespread concern of all in the south east about the destruction of our high streets by the escalation of on-street parking charges.

When Tory controlled

Shepway council published what is turning out to be its disastrous so-called 'parking strategy' last year, we in the Folkestone & Hythe Constituency Labour Party instigated local referenda in the towns of Folkestone and Hythe, which resulted in a staggering 96 per cent majority voting against the introduction of on-street metering.

Blind to this demonstration of public opposition, in September the council went ahead with the introduction of meters in areas of close proximity to Folkestone town centre.

The consequent reduction in footfall by shoppers is causing concern to shops and businesses in the area.

I agree with Rex Priggen. What we really need of course, is councillors with a little common sense.

John Stockham, executive member, Folkestone & Hythe Constituency Labour Party

Export trade is unfair for UK

I WOULD like to reply to the letter (KOS 4/1/12) from Chris Smith concerning the live animal export trade.

Really, Mr Smith, your argument is completely illogical. You say you want to see sheep in the fields to make our countryside look "pretty".

Then add that you are happy to see those same sheep shipped abroad for slaughter.

Those of us who demonstrate against this cruel and unnecessary trade, also want to see sheep in our countryside, but we want them to die here too.

At present, they are being shipped to various countries in Europe, where they are then tagged as being the product of that country.

The trade is operated by a Dutch national, the animals are transported by Dutch hauliers, who use our roads for free, and the British economy gains nothing from the trade.

If the sheep were killed in this country the animals would not have to suffer a long and stressful journey before slaughter. More jobs would be created for British workers (eg. British truck drivers, abattoir workers, butchers etc.).

The carcasses would then be stamped as British before being exported, giving due credit to British farmers for a quality product.

Fallon issues blunt warning to banks: 'I'm coming for you'

By Dave Mairs

dave.mairs@archant.co.uk

THE atmosphere was wholly convivial at the breakfast reception organised by the Sevenoaks Town Partnership, but main speaker and local MP Michael Fallon had some harsh words for the country's banks.

Mr Fallon, the Conservative MP for Sevenoaks, who has recently been appointed Minister of State for Business and Enterprise, was responding to a question from this newspaper about how he would force the country's high-street banks to use the money that had been made available to them to promote economic growth.

There has been widespread revulsion at the manner in which Government money – or, to be precise, taxpayers' money – has been channelled into huge bonuses and the hoarding of excessive reserves rather than into lending to businesses at affordable rates.

Mr Fallon said: "I have warned the major high-street banks that if they don't improve their performance I will publish their lending dealings bank by bank.

"They all tell you a different story – it's always someone else. What I will do if it doesn't improve is name and shame the poorest-performing banks.

"I'm absolutely determined to get the money that has been made available to them to small businesses – the taxpayer has been providing this money."

One man who will be delighted with such a firm approach is Roger House, chairman of the Kent branch of the Federation of Small Businesses, who, in a blistering attack this summer, told us: "Millions of pounds has been made available to them [the banks] and money that could have been used to stimulate growth in the economy has gone into bonuses.

"The way these national institutions has behaved is, frankly, frightening."

Back at the business reception, held at the Stag Community Arts Centre on Friday last week, the plaudits for Mr Fallon flowed.

Host and Sevenoaks town mayor Richard Parry told delegates that the Government's current Business Secretary should be wary of a rising star.

"Watch out, Vince Cable, here comes a rival!" he said.

Speaking for the Sevenoaks business community, he continued in a similarly enthusiastic vein: "We are blessed to have such an entrepreneurial MP."

Roddy Hogarth, who holds the portfolio for economic development and partnerships at Sevenoaks District Council, believed that Mr Fallon's promotion would be only good news for the area.

STRONG WORDS: MP Michael Fallon

"We'll be playing on a more level playing field," he said. "The region has not always been at the head of the queue. It has been perceived as affluent and successful, which is correct, but there are things that could be improved."

"We could do more for Swanley, for example, while there are many businesses in rural areas that would benefit from enhanced broadband."

Delegates paid £10 to be at the event, with the money going to the mayor's chosen charities, Riding For The Disabled Sevenoaks and Age UK Sevenoaks.

Fledgling company set up by ex-Pfizer staff seals £3.8 million research deal to secure its first year

A BIOTECH firm set up by four ex-Pfizer researchers has received a multi-million-pound cash boost just months after launching, writes Marijke Cox.

Canterbury-based Ziarco, which specialises in research for anti-inflammatory and anti-allergy medicines, announced a £3.8 million research deal with Pfizer Venture Investments and US group Biotechnology Value Fund LP.

President and chief executive of Ziarco, Dr Mike Yeadon, who was former vice-president and chief scientific officer of Pfizer's alert and respiratory research unit, founded the new company with three other ex-Pfizer employees: Steve Liu, who will serve as chief scientist; Lynn Purkins, who leads clinical development; and Arif Shiyji, head of business development and development operations.

Dr Yeadon said the company was "very fortunate" to have secured the deal at such an early stage.

"This deal demonstrates the strength of British science," he said.

"The £3.8m is the initial transaction in what is a £16-17m fund in total. This will provide us with the funding for in excess of one year's operation."

The agreement will focus on developing new and improved anti-inflammatory and anti-allergic medicines.

According to Ziarco, this research could lead to new methods of treating several major diseases, including asthma, allergic rhinitis, pain and a variety of inflammatory skin conditions.

Dr Yeadon was among hundreds of staff made redundant after Pfizer downsized at the Sandwich site.

"I can only speak for myself and I'm sure for many it was a very upsetting time, but I found it an extremely exciting opportunity," he said.

Dr Yeadon and his three colleagues looked at setting up the new company, but it wasn't until this year that it was formally launched.

"Not only are we very fortunate at such an early stage in the company's development to have licensed significant assets from Pfizer and secured funding from BVF and Pfizer Venture Investments to progress development of these innovative therapeutic agents, but we have in place a highly-experienced team which has deep knowledge of these programmes and has the passion and expertise to deliver," he said.

Dr Yeadon said that, while it was unlikely the company would become big quickly, it was possible more staff would be taken on in the future.

"We're already using some of the rich source of local expertise, such as a firm which is making sure our IT is in place," he said. "So while we're not actually employing new staff at the moment, we are helping by supporting other small businesses."

"Because we're new to running our own small company, we'd love to hear from anyone locally who can help a young business be successful."

"We would welcome and value advice and contributions."

Barbara Dalton, vice-president at venture capital at Pfizer, said the drugs giant was delighted to support the growth of the company.

BVF president Mark Lampert said: "The programmes have the potential to provide new, compelling and differentiated therapeutics to patients with debilitating diseases. It is a privilege to be associated with Ziarco."

Hi-tech firm picks up small matter of physics award

TOPS: Naneum receives the award

CANTERBURY Innovation Centre is celebrating the accomplishments of tenant company Naneum, which won the prestigious Innovation Award from the Institute of Physics.

The award was in recognition of an instrument that Naneum had developed called a nanoparticle spectrometer.

The device was developed to meet the requirements of the science community for a portable, high-resolution sizing instrument for extremely small particles of matter.

It allows tiny nanoparticle size distributions in the air to be measured quickly and easily and is of crucial benefit to researchers in environmental monitoring and occupational health.

Dr Robert Muir, managing director of Naneum, said: "This award is a great motivation for our young researchers, giving them wide recognition for their groundbreaking work. We hope to build on this achievement to gain greater exposure for our products."

Canterbury Innovation Centre, a business centre that focuses on high-technology businesses, welcomed Naneum as its first tenant company when it opened in November 2009.

Centre manager Jo Clark said: "Naneum is exactly the type of company the Canterbury Innovation Centre was designed to attract.

"It is working in the highly-technical field of nanotechnology, is a perfect example of a company graduating from the university's incubator to the innovation centre and has helped the region to retain bright young talent coming out of the university rather than losing them to other counties or even countries."

Incoming chairman has right grounding for fellow civil engineers to follow

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

CIVIL engineers in Kent have a new chairman after their recent annual general meeting held at Wrotham Heath.

Rob James, who works for infrastructure provider Amey, has been elected to chair the Institution of Civil Engineers (Ice) Kent and East Sussex branch for the next year.

The director of Ice South East England, John Laverty, said: "The Ice South East England's Kent and East Sussex branch is very active on behalf of the 2,000 members we have in those counties, so having a strong chairman is essential.

Rob James fulfils that role perfectly. He has been involved in the Ice since 2006 and is a former chair of the Kent and East Sussex Ice graduate and student committee as well as having served on the branch committee for the past three years.

"In his professional life he is a principal civil engineer at Amey, where he leads their airport infrastructure team.

"Rob has worked in civil engineering for 15 years, delivering multi-million-pound airport and highway infrastructure projects, including the 2009 Thomas Brassey award-winning A2 Pepperhill to Cobham widening.

"Ice South East England is looking forward to working with him over the next 12 months and is confident he will help promote and develop the work of civil engineers in the county."

James said: "Next year will see the South East Local Enterprise Partnership launch the Local Transport Board and a consultation on the Third Lower Thames Crossing, as well as the ongoing discussions regarding aviation capacity.

"Add these major projects to the continuing work such as the Highway's Agency pinchpoint investment programme and schemes being developed by local authorities and energy, transport, water and waste companies and it is clear there is a lot happening which will involve civil engineers.

"We know that investing in infrastructure not only creates jobs now but brings benefits for the economy for a long time in the future, too, so getting these projects right is essential to get the maximum benefit from such investment."

NEW MAN: Branch officer Elaine Lawford welcomes Rob James to his new role as chairman of Ice

PROGRAMME

Small businesses centre of attention in new competition

THE Federation of Small Businesses (FSB) and credit-card payment company Streamline have launched a new business-awards programme to promote and celebrate innovation and success among small businesses in Kent.

The FSB Streamline UK Business Awards will also run across another 11 geographical areas around the UK, with area finalists selected to go through to a national final in April 2013.

The Kent and Medway awards are open and businesses are being invited to nominate themselves in four categories:

- Micro Business of the Year
- Young Entrepreneur of the Year

Four businesses (one for each category) will be selected by a panel of independent judges, and one will be selected as winner and receive a cash prize of £500.

The winner, along with the remaining category finalists, will be entered into the national final for their category, with £4,500 up for grabs for each national category-winner.

The judges will then select one overall business as winner of the FSB Streamline UK Business of the Year Award. The winner of this award will receive an additional £5,000 and a business-consultancy package worth a further £5,000 to help them to grow their business.

The Business Innovation and Online Business of the Year awards are open to any UK-registered businesses employing 250 people or fewer, while the Micro Business of the Year award is open to any business employing 10 employees or fewer.

The Young Entrepreneur of the Year award is open to anyone aged 30 or under on Monday, December 31, 2012.

Full details of the entry criteria and how to enter are available at www.fsbstreamlineawards.co.uk. The closing date for entries is December 31.

The awards have been designed by the FSB and Streamline to raise the profile of small businesses across the UK and to highlight the crucial role they are playing in kick-starting and supporting the UK economy.

Andrew Aves, FSB development manager for Kent and Medway, said: "As with everything we do, these awards are designed to promote the interests of small businesses and entrepreneurs all over the UK.

"We are really looking forward to using this awards programme as an opportunity to identify and engage with some of the most innovative and successful small business in the UK."

Phoenix Photonics, previously based in south London, develops specialist fibre-optic components and instruments for future broadband internet deployment in the global telecommunications market, and has relocated to premises just outside Canterbury.

Training, courses and careers

Bright idea to help future electricians test the road ahead

BRIGHT sparks have been given a major opportunity to boost their employability as electricians.

Learning can be greatly accelerated by using real world scenarios in most fields, and MidKent College has devised a new business venture to provide the would-be sparkies with just that.

MKC Aspire Ltd is a division of the college and was set up to enhance the learning experience of students with several new projects - including teaching students how to conduct portable appliance tests (PATs).

And after five weeks of training, students will be paid to carry out PATs across the college's campuses in Medway and Maidstone.

Simon Foot, head of faculty for construction and engineering, said: "Part of our commitment to prepare students for the working world is to provide them with real life opportunities such as this.

"It's great for them because they gain invaluable experience carrying out PATs, while the college also benefits by not having to bring in external companies to carry out the work."

Lecturer Tony Marsh said they will soon be qualified to test televisions, computers and any other electrical appliances found in the workplace. He added: "It's a recognisable skill and a qualification that is convertible to cash.

"It will be invaluable for the students when they are seeking employment because it will give them an edge over other applicants."

THE INTERVIEW

Gareth Gates

Prince Charming says his piece... loud and clear

Joe Bill meets the stammering singing sensation who won all our hearts ahead of his Sleeping Beauty appearance

T was little more than a decade ago that a reality television show grabbed hold of UK viewers and refused to release them. Pop Idol was an early incarnation of what is now The X Factor and it was within this show that one of the most memorable reality moments – one that many would remember for years to come – would occur.

Will versus Gareth... the papers went crazy, there was voting scandal, protests and tears. It was off the back of this battle that Simon Cowell has strengthened his hold on UK primetime TV.

One half of that epic struggle was 17-year-old Gareth Gates, the boy with the voice of an angel with whom Brits fell in love as he struggled to overcome severe speech difficulties to win a record contract.

He lost out to Will Young in the Pop Idol tussle, but his courage and drive meant that producing hits soon became the norm.

But now, more than 10 years on, the Bradford lad is no longer just a pin-up star for teens – he is up in front of the real critics as he makes a career on stage in West End hit shows like Les Misérables and Joseph And The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat.

There was tension in the air as I walked into our agreed Canterbury hotel and I was introduced not only to Gates, who stars in this winter's Marlowe Theatre panto, but also to Tok, his compatriot from the McGuire Speech Programme.

Gates told me: "We are part of the McGuire speech-therapy programme. It is an ongoing thing. It's something there's no cure for. If an athlete doesn't train, it's the same as if we don't do our breathing exercises – and we will find that affects us speech-wise."

He is also an instructor on the programme and teaches others with a stammer how to progress their speech.

The star, who is playing Prince Charming, is told to slow down by Tok as he continues.

"I have bad days. For instance, I was on Loose Women recently. I have done that show many times before, but for some reason, maybe being busy with shows, being tired, or other factors, I had a really bad interview speech-wise. That knocked my confidence, which is why having Tok around and people from the programme helps me get back to it."

In the UK alone, Gates has sold 3.5 million records, released three albums and had four UK No 1 singles. He had the Smash Hits record of the year in 2002 and the second-best-selling single of the 'Noughties' with Unchained Melody, beaten only by his old rival Will Young with the song Evergreen.

But it is his performances on stage that are now making headlines. Once he is up there, the stammer is no issue.

"Scripts and things like that are a lot easier than general conversation. I just learn the scripts, build up the confidence and then I'm fine on stage.

"For example, I'm in a show called Loserville in Leeds, so that's a really serious acting role. Speech-wise it has been a great challenge, but once I'm rehearsed I'm fine. I am in character... I am not Gareth up there."

He is excited about adding to his list of stage appearances in The Marlowe's Sleeping Beauty this Christmas.

"I love panto – it's fun. I've done Les Mis, Joseph, Loserville and am about to go into Legally Blonde with the leading lady [Faye Brookes] from this show, which will be great. But you can't really interact with the audience because it's about telling the story.

"With panto, it's just fun and I am really, really looking forward to it."

Gates has come a long way since his first live audition in front of Cowell and friends, but he's grateful for the opportunity the show gave.

"I was young. I had no real clue as to how huge it was going to be, how my life would change. I'm glad I was that young because I just enjoyed the experience."

"I don't think there has been a final show since that gripped the nation as much as the 'Will versus Gareth' thing. It has given me a great opportunity and I went on to sell millions of records, have several No 1s and live the dream."

And although he made his name through reality TV and appeared in ITV's Dancing On Ice, Gates is not ready to go back down that route just yet.

"I often get asked to go into Big Brother or the jungle. Never say never, but, I mean, the shows that I've done require you to be good at something or to learn a skill and that's what I like.

"I like the challenging aspect as opposed to just being sat in a house."

■ Gareth Gates will appear in Sleeping Beauty at The Marlowe Theatre, Canterbury, from Friday, November 30, to Sunday, January 20. Phone 01227 787787 or visit www.marlowetheatre.com.

Friendly and tasty, it's easy to see why people go Thai

Just to maintain your spot in the busy marketplace that is the Whitstable restaurant trade is an achievement in its own right, and when you're a small family-run restaurant offering Thai food in a district of high-quality fish venues and bustling bistros, you could well be overlooked. But the Shangri La in the high street has been around for a few years now and is always talked about fondly.

And I can see why. Met at the door with the traditional Thai greeting, our waitress for the evening took our coats and showed my guest and I to one of the only free tables in the busy restaurant... not bad for a Tuesday night.

The warm restaurant is decorated with table throws and Thai paintings, while soft music plays in the background. It is a relaxing atmosphere and we were brought an imported Chang beer to start the evening.

To start, I went for a mixed platter of chicken satay, marinated in spiced coconut milk and grilled on a bamboo skewer, a black tiger-prawn wrapped in pastry and deep-fried, as well as pork and prawn blended with herbs and deep-fried on toast and a traditional spring roll.

The dish was served with dipping sauces, including spicy peanut sauce, best with the chicken, and sweet chilli for the prawns.

RESTAURANT REVIEW

Each piece was a delicious light bite and not greasy, with the dipping sauces making it perfect for sharing, but a little variation from the deep-fried would be a real benefit.

Resisting the urge to go for my favourite Thai green curry, for the main course I chose the lamb panang. The dish was cooked in coconut milk, hot peppers and kaffir lime leaves. The curry was fresh and light and included roasted cashew nuts. The chillis warmed the dish significantly towards the end but to a comfortable level. You can request extra spice with each dish.

The diced lamb was tender and melted in the mouth... perfect. My guest went for the more fruity and sweet lamb mango curry, which included chunks of the fresh fruit, green cardamoms and star anise for an aniseed flavour.

For our side dishes we went for the egg-fried rice, which arrived in a pretty pot of Thai china and a pad thai dish that included rice noodles with red onion, beansprouts, spring onions and crushed cashews. The pad thai was a little overbearing in flavour and when I go again I won't choose it. The portion sizes were spot on and we were left without feeling we needed more.

The dessert menu is very basic and comprises mainly fruit and ice-creams and sorbets, so I tried my guest's coconut-and-mango concoction.

We ate three good courses, with side dishes, had a couple of drinks and came out having spent a reasonable £49.70. The service was excellent and the food good – it is actually very easy to see why the Shangri La can compete.

Having worked in Australia as well as Kent's Chilston Park, The Bell Inn at Sandwich and the Hythe Imperial, Piddock said: "I am passionate about using local produce.

"We will be creating dishes to get the best out of those ingredients and increasing production in the restaurant's one-acre walled garden for use by the kitchen."

YOUR WEEKEND

Joan's star still shines bright

By Joe Bill

joe.bill@archant.co.uk

IN 1973, Joan Armatrading was voted Outstanding New Artist in a critics' poll in trade magazine Music Week.

The singer-songwriter has come along way since her birth in the West Indies and upbringing in Birmingham, bagging three Grammy nominations, two Brit nominations and a coveted Ivor Novello Award.

And now, with the release her 20th studio album, Starlight, Armatrading returns to Kent with a new tour, and there is no sign of her slowing down.

"I'm not always sure where I've been – there have been so many times before. I still tour after every album," she said.

"I love to write – it is my passion, it is my favourite thing – and once I have written a song I want people to hear it in a live situation.

"When you're travelling, it can be incredibly tiring, but once you get out on to the stage, no matter how tired you've felt, and if the audience are into it, the tiredness vanishes and you're as fresh as a daisy.

"I always do a combination of old and new songs – it would be unfair to everybody if I just played my new album."

The 61-year-old is keen to keep her tours and live appearances simple for her fans and herself.

"They will hear new things from Starlight, but they will hear lots of songs they've known for a long time, and it's the audience's reaction to that which keeps touring fresh.

"I don't take anything with me – a hairdryer, a toothbrush and obviously a change of clothes. Every day is in a different city, so you don't want to be having a big suitcase to unpack every day.

"My very first tour, I had a bag that was the size of a doctor's bag for the three months in America – and that is all I took."

In musical terms, Armatrading has achieved what most performers dream of. She has played with some of the finest musicians around, received countless gold and platinum discs, figured in VH1's Top 100 of The Most Influential Women In Rock and been honoured by The Queen in receiving an MBE.

Her prolific song-writing continues, but the musician has her very own way of creating tracks, including her new record, Starlight.

"It's part of a trilogy of blues, rock and jazz albums I started in 2007. This one is the final of the three, so it has a huge jazz influence on the CD. I don't actually listen to a lot of stuff. I'm aware of what music is going on, but I don't sit down and listen to a load of jazz before writing – I just do it."

"Because I'm touring, I won't be writing. I can't write on tour – it doesn't work for me. But I will have lots of ideas that I will make a note of. When I finish a tour, I'm in the mood to write and I have that time on my own. I haven't got to travel or do interviews or sound checks – I can just get on with it."

Her music from the past 40 years remains as popular with fans today as when it was first released, especially her smash hit Love And Affection.

"That's the song that got me known all over the world.

"It doesn't matter whether I'm in Japan or Australia, that single is requested. I have sung it at every single gig on every single tour I have ever done. There are always requests for The Weakness In Me. It's a toss-up between those two as to which gets the biggest applause."

Amazingly, Armatrading continues to surprise everyone and in 2008, one month from her 58th birthday, she ran the 26-mile New York marathon and helped raise £76,000 for her chosen charity.

However, this isn't something she intends to repeat regularly.

"The marathon was always something I wanted to do, but I didn't particularly want to do loads of them. I like sports anyway – I was completely caught up with the Olympics.

"After all the medals came, everyone got into it and more people were proud to be British and that was the whole point. It was fantastic."

■ Joan Armatrading is at the Assembly Hall Theatre in Tunbridge Wells on Tuesday, November 20, at 7.30pm. Phone 01892 530613 for tickets. Alternatively, you can visit www.assemblyhalltheatre.co.uk.

HOMES

New website clicks with both agents and sellers

AN estate-agency comparison website launched by Folkestone business netanagent.com has already outperformed expectations in its month.

netanagent.com allows anyone with a property to sell or let to post their details free of charge and wait for tailored quotes to be sent back from interested estate agencies.

The property-owner can then make an informed choice and pick the best deal.

Since the launch, the website has been inundated with requests, both from those with properties to sell or let, and from estate agencies wishing to be listed on the site.

The website is attracting business from across England and is currently listing more than £17 million of property.

In the last five weeks, 27,500 visitors have been to the site – outperforming all predicted expectations.

Alex Thorpe, managing director of netanagent.com, said: "We're delighted with the feedback from both estate agents and those that have instructed an agent through the site so far."

"Our aim was to turn the property-selling or letting process on its head as for the first time estate agents have to demonstrate up front what exactly they will be charging and, more importantly, the value they'll add to the sales process.

"We've already seen a raft of competitive offers on the table for the homeowner to pick from and we're hoping this will lead to a shake-up of the market.

"What we're finding is that people are saving significant amounts of money by using this website. For example, one user was coming to the end of his contract with an existing estate agent. By using our site, he managed to save £1,200 on the sale of a property worth £75,000 – which is the equivalent of the moving fees.

"We're very pleased with the progress to date – we're striking a balance between providing property-owners with the best deal and providing agents with good-quality leads and a stronger online presence. We're planning to continue our fast expansion for the remainder of this year and into next."

Opportunities from Green Deal are highlighted during seminar

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

A SEMINAR hosted by the Country Land And Business Association has highlighted to both homeowners and those involved in the letting market the challenges ahead following Government housing-policy developments and the launch of the Green Deal in October.

A Government report published earlier this year highlighted the need to increase the provision of let housing being built or financed by the private sector – yet many who attempt to venture down that route find themselves frustrated by rules and regulations and by unhelpful tax regimes and difficulties obtaining finance.

The Country Land And Business Association (CLA) says it is offering members and non-members alike the chance to explore the rationale and process behind the Green Deal as well as the threats and opportunities that attendees could experience in delivering high-quality housing in the 21st century.

At the seminar, at the Best Western Donnington Manor Hotel in Sevenoaks, CLA national housing adviser Danielle Troop, who has previously worked on housing-led regeneration and affordable housing delivery, outlined the political background to the rural-housing agenda

A CHANGING FACE: Recent Government housing-policy changes have opened up a number of opportunities for those who are interested in entering the lettings sector and the CLA's policy objectives with a breakdown of the Housing Health and Safety Rating System (HHSRS), giving attendees pointers for the future.

CLA regional surveyor Tim Broomhead said: "Whether you are a landlord or manager of rural housing, this seminar will help you to take advantage of the recent changes. We welcome the opportunity to host these interactive seminars to provide the public with the necessary information to succeed with their existing and future stock."

The recently-issued CLA Housing Policy for 2013 that focuses on new housing across all tenures was also discussed.

Driving

JAGUAR hasn't made a habit of estate cars.

Apart from a few one-offs and concepts, the marque's first production model was the X-Type Estate of 2004, which was easily better looking than the tubby saloon.

But Jaguar buffs will tell you that estate still doesn't count, as the whole X-Type project was based on a Ford Mondeo.

The new Jaguar XF Sportbrake, on the other hand, looks like a Jag thoroughbred.

Based on Jaguar's best-seller, the glamorous XF saloon, it is both a practical load-lugger and rakish lifestyle estate for those who like the country-set image. This apparent contradiction has been achieved by a sweeping rear roofline made to look even more dramatic by its divergence from the arc of the rearmost side window, and by a slanting tailgate.

Inside, though, are fully-folding rear seats and a nicely squared-off load space – it should pass the antique-dealer's chest-of-drawers test.

Self-levelling rear suspension as standard is also testament to Jaguar's desire that this 'estate of grace, space and pace' – to borrow a famous Jaguar slogan of the 1950s and 1960s – should be taken seriously as a practical as well as stylish choice.

Two early Sportbrake examples gave the new model extra kudos, too, as support cars to victorious UK cycling hero Bradley Wiggins and Team Sky in the Tour de France earlier this year.

After this teasing build-up, though, the car is now available to buy, priced from a not-unreasonable £31,940.

Targeted primarily at discerning company-car user-choosers, where it will attack the BMW 5 series Touring, Audi A6 Avant and new Mercedes-Benz CLS Sporting Brake particularly, the Sportbrake launches with diesel power only.

And the headline here is replacement of the previous 190PS (187bhp) four-cylinder 2.2-litre unit by two derivatives offering 163PS (161) or 200PS (197) with CO2 emissions from just 135g/km and combined economy from 55.4mpg. The Sportbrake will also be available with a 3.0-litre turbocharged V6 diesel (from £35,855) with either 240PS (237) or 275PS (271) outputs.

An eight-speed auto with emissions and fuel-saving Stop/Start and manual paddleshifts is now standard on all XFs, the arrival of the new estate version coinciding with an upgrade of powertrains and other details for the whole XF range – the car that has really put Jaguar back on the map with customers.

Sportbrake performance ranges from 0-60mph in 9.8 seconds for the 163PS version to 5.9 seconds for the 275PS V6 – the V6 versions are likely to be most sought after by private buyers, while the fleet sector will like the more company-car-tax-efficient 2.2 models.

The XF range now also gets a British Meridian sound system, replacing fellow UK premium audio brand Bowers and Wilkins.

An estate of grace, space and pace, to coin a Jaguar phrase

DESIGNED TO PLEASE:

Jaguar's new XF Sportbrake first came to the fore as a support car to victorious UK cycling hero Bradley Wiggins and Team Sky in the Tour de France earlier this year

DON'T LIKE

... the wait for such a stylish yet practical alternative to the XF saloon, but Jaguar lacks the development resources of German rivals.

NOT SURE

... it can rival the volumes of Audi, BMW and Merc estates, but the Germans will worry about another star turn from the resurgent Brit brand.

REALLY LIKE

... how the Sportbrake is almost a stand-alone model, taking the best of the XF saloon but creating an elegant car to view in isolation.

MOTORING NEWS

Fleet appeal of new Mazda6

NEW eco-friendly Skyactiv technology embedded in the new Mazda6, due in January, is expected to create one of the slowest-depreciating models in the fleet sector, say CAP monitor valuation experts.

Residual values for one of the likely stars of the range, the £23,140 Mazda6 2.2 150ps SE-L Nav, are expected to be 32 per cent of original price.

Hybrid aiming even higher

LEXUS has created a super executive hybrid with the launch of the new high-spec, high-value CT200h Advance (£24,495).

Standard kit includes sat-nav, reversing camera, auto-dimming rear-view mirror, rain-sensing wipers, folding door mirrors, cruise-control and the brand's new alternative to leather upholstery called Tahara, all for a premium of just £500 over the existing CT200h SE model.

Price is finally right for VXR

COULD this be take-off for the muscular Vauxhall Insignia VXR – a great sporting car hamstrung by buyers' fears of future depreciation?

The old car has been replaced by the faster (by 15mph with a 170mph maximum) yet cheaper (almost £4,000 at £29,995) Insignia VXR SuperSport.

It looks like the sort of value to turn penny-pinchers into liberated VXR-buyers.

Go for a GT86... Toyota out to prove that you only live once

By Steve Loader

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

TOYOTA was worrying me...

Having made its name with well-equipped, reliable smaller cars, it always used to glam up its image with fast, affordable halo models like the Celica, Supra and 1980s mid-engine MR2.

But once the Japanese car giant caught the hybrid bug, every spare yen of research and development cash seemed to pour into laudable but dull hybrids until, finally, management recognised that excitement was missing.

Cue this summer's GT86, a cheap yet stunning sports car that deliberately echoes an even older image-maker, the 1960s 2000GT – 'Toyota's E-Type' immortalised by a one-off convertible version made for the James Bond film You Only Live Twice.

The GT86 has the same long nose, low-slung window line and minuscule rear quarterpane as the 2000GT, and Toyota shrewdly kept the car simple and shared development with Subaru, which badly needed a halo car, too, and has ties with Toyota.

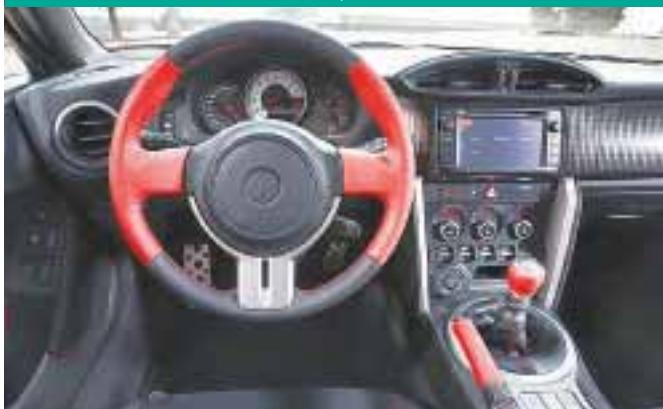

Toyota supplied design leadership and new direct petrol-injection technology, which contributed to the car's high non-turbocharged 197bhp output from two litres.

Subaru, which markets the car as the BRZ, supplied the platform and one of its trademark boxer (horizontally-opposed) engines, allowing an ultra-low profile and superb rear-wheel-drive balance, encouraging keen drivers to gently drift the back end out when cornering with traction control off.

Badges on the GT86 wings, showing two horizontal pistons and four drifting wheels, sum up this ability and the car's engine. It's the sort of affordable sporting fun previously owned by the Mazda MX-5 – which will soon have a GT86 crop-top to contend with as well.

There's just one GT86 model (£24,995) for now, though, unless you want the auto (why?)

for an additional £1,500, and it looks as retro inside as out, with a modest yet sturdy dashboard and trimming that is part of its charm.

There are nice alloy-finish pedals, though, even if you wonder why Toyota didn't throw in red seatbelts. The only concession to the modern age is a central media/sat-nav screen.

There's a fashionable and retro stop/start engine button, of course, although there is a space for a conventional steering-column key, suggesting that an even cheaper version could arrive that might really clean up in this sector.

Cabin stowage is typically minimalist for a sports car, but there's an uncharacteristically good boot even if the aperture is narrow.

The front seats are well shaped, with two heavily-bucketed ones in the back; you could carry four adults at a pinch, but the GT86 is more a 2+2 while still being more practical than most other – more expensive – sports cars I could mention.

But this is all froth compared with the driving experience, which is top-notch – especially at this price, with Toyota's promise of reliability and low maintenance backed by a five-year/100,000-mile warranty.

There have been whinges that the engine is neither turbocharged nor sounds beefy enough, and is slow out of the blocks, but that's probably as much for PR reasons – a gas-guzzling monster would jar with Toyota's expensively-won image as an eco champion.

Anyway, I like the engine and its sweet revving once into its stride above 4,000 revs. It will hit 62mph in 7.6 seconds, but manoeuvrability is more key to the car's appeal, helped by wheels and tyres resembling a Toyota Prius hybrid – beefing them up would surely lower the GT86's fun factor. The six-speed gearbox can be flicked from cog to cog quickly while allowing economical motorway cruising, for it's a useable sports car rather than a holidays-and-high-days beast.

So, if you always promised yourself a sports car one day...

Main Dealer Servicing

Protecting car reliability and value needs care

IT'S hard to imagine in tough economic times, but cars represent better value now than in the past.

They are also more reliable and come with more equipment, but what hasn't changed is the need to keep up the service schedule and ensure repairs are carried out swiftly and competently.

The best guarantee used to be a full main dealer service history, a reassuring record that everything required for the manufacturer's warranty had been carried out.

But this became seen as a restrictive practice and 2002 EU legislation made it illegal for manufacturers to insist on cars being maintained by their franchise network to keep the guarantee intact.

It also meant that manufacturers had to make vehicle diagnostics information – crucial with increasingly-sophisticated vehicles – specialist tools and updates available to independent garages and servicing centres.

Nevertheless, many car-buyers still prefer main dealer franchising and also think it is the best way to protect the part-exchange or second-hand value of the car, since used-car-buyers will usually pay a premium for a full main dealer service history on sophisticated models like the Peugeot 508.

Sceptics argue, though, that this perceived

KEEPING ON TRACK: Don't cut corners on servicing and care for sophisticated modern cars like the Citroen DS5 (left) Hybrid 5 and the Porsche Cayenne premium is wiped out by paying higher main dealer service costs.

Maybe, but manufacturers and their main-dealer networks have raised their game since the 2002 legislation. Indeed, with car sales and profits squeezed during the economic downturn, dealers have become more competitive on servicing, created cost-effective service plans, enhanced customer service and specialised in ancillaries like tyres and exhausts – normally the preserve of the quick-fit centres.

They have also banked on the perception that only a main dealer's service technicians can know its cars as well they do.

And happy service customers keep coming back, seeing the latest new car models on the showroom floor – one day soon, they may be buying again.

SEALING THE DEAL:
Maintaining your racy Alfa Romeo Giulietta or sophisticated Lexus RX450h hybrid, far left, through your local franchise should mean it's worth more when you sell

Dealer service history – is it worth it?

ONCE you know the jargon of used-car classified ads, the importance of DSH, MDSH and FMDSH becomes clear.

For those yet to be initiated, they are all variations on the theme 'dealer service history', with FMDSH being the gold standard – full main dealer service history.

Does it matter? Well, a lot of new-car-buyers think it does because it protects future part-exchange or second-hand values of their motor, since used-car-buyers are usually happy to pay a premium for a complete and unblemished main dealer service history.

Critics might argue: "Ah, but you wiped out that perceived premium by paying more for your main dealer servicing while you owned the car."

It's a point, but having seen sales profits squeezed ever more tightly, many dealers have chosen to market servicing more aggressively.

They've become more cost-effective, enhanced customer service, introduced competitive pricing on items like tyres – normally the preserve of the quick-fit centres – and encouraged the perception that only a main dealer's service technicians can know its cars as well they do.

And dealers know that happy service customers come back, bringing immediate revenue and also seeing the latest models on the showroom floor – they may, of course, buy again.

Third-party sources also support the wisdom of keeping your new car in the franchise family.

Media motoring guru Honest John really was honest with a BMW-owner who considered using an independent garage to maintain his car.

"After independent servicing, you will get a lower part-ex price from a BMW-dealer and it will go to auction.

"If the car has a full dealer service history and is in retail condition, you will get a higher price. The difference will normally be worth more than you save on maintenance," he said.

Motor Trade Insider website polled several professional motor-traders who collectively buy 5,000 cars per year for main dealers.

The simple question was: "If you were asked to bid on a three-year-old variant of one of your models with average mileage and spec, would you value it any less if it had three KwikFit/Halfords/Tesco etc stamps against three stamps from the franchise representing the car?"

The answer? "The results in some cases were staggering: the Ford- and VW-buyers said they would value a car like this £800-£1,000 less.

"The Jaguar-buyer said it would need to be £1,500 to £2,000 less and, amazingly, the BMW and Mercedes boys said they probably just wouldn't want to buy it!"

SUPPORT: Manufacturers like Mazda now use digital service histories that are harder to falsify

EXTRAS: If your vehicle – like this Mercedes-Benz Sprinter or Mitsubishi L200 – needs a replacement part, your main dealer can be just as cheap as a fast-fit centre

Main dealers hit back at quick fit

SPECIALIST 'quick/fast-fit' centres have boomed as drivers try to save money on exhausts, tyres, batteries, clutches, shock-absorbers and routine services, plus the annual MOT.

But main dealers have not been sitting idle, reckoning that if car-owners are still using their service bays, then they won't mind considering realistic deals on tyres and exhausts, for instance, to ensure a time-saving one-stop-shop purchase.

Using the main dealer also guarantees that only genuine manufacturers' parts are used, bringing the confidence of additional quality and reliability and the knowledge that this will be logged on the dealer/manufacturer database.

And that same guarantee, plus realistic pricing, has also encouraged owners to have bodyshop repairs done either by the franchise's own panel-beaters and paintshop or one that gets its seal of approval.

Main dealers have also borrowed from their quick-fit rivals by offering menu pricing; this means that, like dining out, a customer can decide what he wants and knows in advance what it will cost – avoiding motoring indigestion when the bill is presented.

Some dealers will even let you spread the cost via finance or servicing schemes covering several years.

Others may also offer a loyalty scheme with a tariff of cheaper prices to keep owners of older and lower-value models on their books rather than see them defect to the non-franchised sector simply because they feel their car is no longer worth top servicing prices.

Another trick borrowed from the quick-fit companies is longer working hours at main-dealer service centres; dealers know many customers want to drop off their car early on their way to work and then pick it up at the end of the day – a courtesy car may even be offered.

Bookings can often be made centrally, too, so that customers living midway between two franchised dealers within the same group can pick the most convenient service slots available.

Higher-spec technicians needed for hi-spec cars

INCREASINGLY complex vehicles and a shortage of skills in the jobs market has made the main-dealer technician a hugely important part of the site's servicing operation.

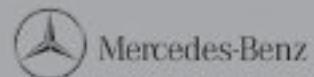

Sarah Sillars, executive chair of the trade's Institute of the Motor Industry (IMI), said: "The rate of technological change in the automotive industry is currently being driven by competition, consumer demands and regulation.

"This is creating a constant requirement for businesses to anticipate change and invest in training to help staff keep pace with developments."

The body has also developed a Consumer Code of Practice system to promote and maintain professional standards, while its sister organisation, the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders (SMMT), published a paper, Strengthening Skills For A Growing Economy, calling on the Government to help feed demand for the necessary skill sets and ease unemployment at the same time.

Most motor-manufacturers are proactive in finding and promoting technicians within dealership networks. Many are sent to special sites and plants run by the companies in the UK and abroad to test their skills and attain the highest qualifications.

MONEY MATTERS:

Hyundai has raised the stakes on warranties – models like the new generation i30, left, come with a five-year/100,000-mile guarantee, but make sure you keep the service schedule up to date to maintain the warranty on the family workhorse like this Nissan Qashqai or the new Peugeot 208

Warranty wars are worth fighting for

NEW cars are covered by a warranty. For years, the standard was three years and/or 60,000 miles, but a recent outbreak of 'warranty wars' between carmakers has seen both the years and mileages increase.

It's a good reason for car-buyers to shop around, but some of the new deals also reinforce the old adage to check the small print.

This will confirm exactly what the manufacturer will and will not pay for if the car breaks down within the agreed time period or mileage.

And this makes it imperative that the car-owner also sticks to the rules by keeping the vehicle serviced according to the warranty – and also takes note of and acts upon any recall notices for unforeseen faults and problems.

Some marques are more lenient about late servicing than others, but a common pitfall is to have the car serviced only by mileage, when most manufacturers now insist that the car is serviced annually if the required miles are not being covered. You don't have to use a franchised dealer for servicing – this stipulation was thrown out by EU legislation in 2002 – but do check for caveats in any case.

Be aware also that some marques offer the chance to extend the warranty for a reasonable cost or will 'wind back' the warranty clock to start again if you buy an approved used example from one of their dealers – not a bad option

Be sure to have a care for your car... or else

CARS have leapt ahead in reliability, comfort and driving pleasure in just a few years, but their sophistication means that upholding reliability, economy and safety is now best left to the professionals.

But this costs, so owners often ignore problems for too long or stretch the servicing schedule beyond the recommended limit, perhaps endangering the occupants and certainly undermining the warranty and provenance of the vehicle when they come to sell.

So, follow these tips:

- Maintain the service record to the letter at the correct mileages or annually and make sure the servicing book is stamped up, although many marques have centralised digital records so that a car's servicing record is always available if required.
- Read the warranty document thoroughly to ensure there are no possible pitfalls to endanger your guarantee.
- Act on recalls from the manufacturer for checks or replacements, even if they do not relate specifically to safety – it will help maintain the warranty and future saleability of the car.
- Don't rely on the MOT as insurance for the car's safety and reliability, even if it has just passed with flying colours – problems can arise at any time and you should get them checked as soon as possible.
- Check lights regularly for safety and legality. Get used to 'lighting up' in the garage or when you are nosed in or backed up to a wall.
- Check tyres – including the spare – monthly, and that includes the correct pressures as listed in the handbook or the sticker often placed on the driver's side door-frame. Though the legal tread depth is 1.6mm, replace at 2mm, especially in winter when icy and wet conditions compromise grip.
- Keep oil, windscreen-washer, coolant, power-steering, clutch and brake-fluid levels topped up without over-filling, and make those checks on level ground. Don't wait for warning lights to come on.
- Replace wiper-blades. There's no point in keeping the washer topped up if blades are worn or split. But if the windscreen is covered with bugs and grease, don't expect the washer and wipers to do the job for you – use a spray and elbow grease.
- Shop around for servicing. Even if you are committed to main-dealer servicing, you don't have to use the one where you bought the car – some are better on pricing and customer service than others.

ATTENTION: New cars like the stylish but practical Citroën C3 Picasso, pictured above, and new Seat Ibiza Cupra hot-hatch are more reliable and safer than ever before, but they still need looking after
